Community Support Connections is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to ensuring that everyone can live at home with independence and dignity. Through our programs and services, we address real needs through tangible efforts for over 7,600 seniors and adults with different abilities across Waterloo Region.

Join our team as a self-employed yard worker, and you will be at the forefront of realizing our vision. We'll connect and match you with deserving clients from our database, and you'll manage your work relationships with them directly, booking appointments with clients based around your schedule and availability. Not only will you be paid for investing in the welfare of your neighbours, but your acts will directly and positively impact their wellbeing. Through your work, you will be allowing some of our most vulnerable community members to continue to live in the comfort of their own homes.

Please note that all workers in this position require a Vulnerable Sector Police Check (VSPC) and owning your own yard equipment is a significant asset.
